

HIDDEN Gems OF NEW WESTMINSTER

*Our City is known for its beautiful parks and landscaping, many of which are Hidden Gems!
Over the summer and fall, we invite you to explore our wonderful natural spaces first hand.
Make one of our Hidden Gems a destination for you and your family.*

Brunette River

Brunette River, a tributary of the Fraser River, has been important for our salmon and trout. Over the last 20 years conservation groups have worked to protect this natural gem accessible from the east side of Lower Hume Park.

Queen's Park Forest

Queen's Park Forest is home to many of the oldest trees in New Westminister and provides a canopy from the sun and rain. Get out in nature with your family and experience this historic park.

Port Royal Beach

Port Royal Beach offers you a local beach! The Port Royal beach is along the North Arm shore of the Fraser River and faces both Lulu Island and the Quay. This hidden gem is the only sandy beach in New Westminister! The Fraser River is a major route for spawning salmon, as well as, home for white sturgeon, trout and other resident fish. Cast off from the docks of the Quay, Sapperton Landing or the Port Royal Beach (appropriate tidal waters license is required).

Friendship Gardens

Friendship Gardens, located in Tipperary Park next to City Hall, is a wonderful family photo opportunity and outing for the summer and fall. It features 12 waterfalls, all a part of an elaborate network of interconnected ponds.

Glenbrook Ravine

Glenbrook Ravine hosts a small creek in the East End of the City offering a wonderful and tranquil trail offering a treed canopy and relief from the bustle of traffic and your busy day.

Hume Park

Hume Park trail is part of the Brunette Watershed and offers lush greenery and views of the Brunette River. It is a more natural green space and a local escape nearby.
