

Mayor Cote's Favourite Walk

Distance: 5.6 km

Duration: 60 - 90 minutes

Level: Medium

Written by: Mayor Johnathan Cote

As many people might know, I love walking and I have many routes that I love walking around in New Westminster. We have such a walkable community with so many unique neighbourhoods to explore. One of my favourite walking routes is one that takes me from City Hall, through Queen's Park, into Glenbrook Ravine and finishes off in Albert Crescent Park. The walk has a good mix of parks, tree lined streets, natural areas and urban landscapes.

Points of Interest:

- 1) Tipperary Park is a beautiful gem that provides an oasis from the city. Whenever I am feeling stressed at work, I often head to this park to clear my mind.
- 2) Stop and smell the roses at the Queen's Park Rose Garden
- 3) As you cross over the overpass into Victoria Hill there is an incredible view point overlooking the Fraser River.
- 4) Unfortunately New Westminster does not have many natural areas, but the Glenbrook Ravine is one place in the city that you can forget that you are in the city.
- 5) As you traverse back through Victoria Hill, enjoy the views, beautiful large tree's and Front Lawn of the former Woodlands site.
- 6) Complete the walk at Albert Crescent Park, one of the oldest parks in the city that overlooks the Pattullo Bridge.
